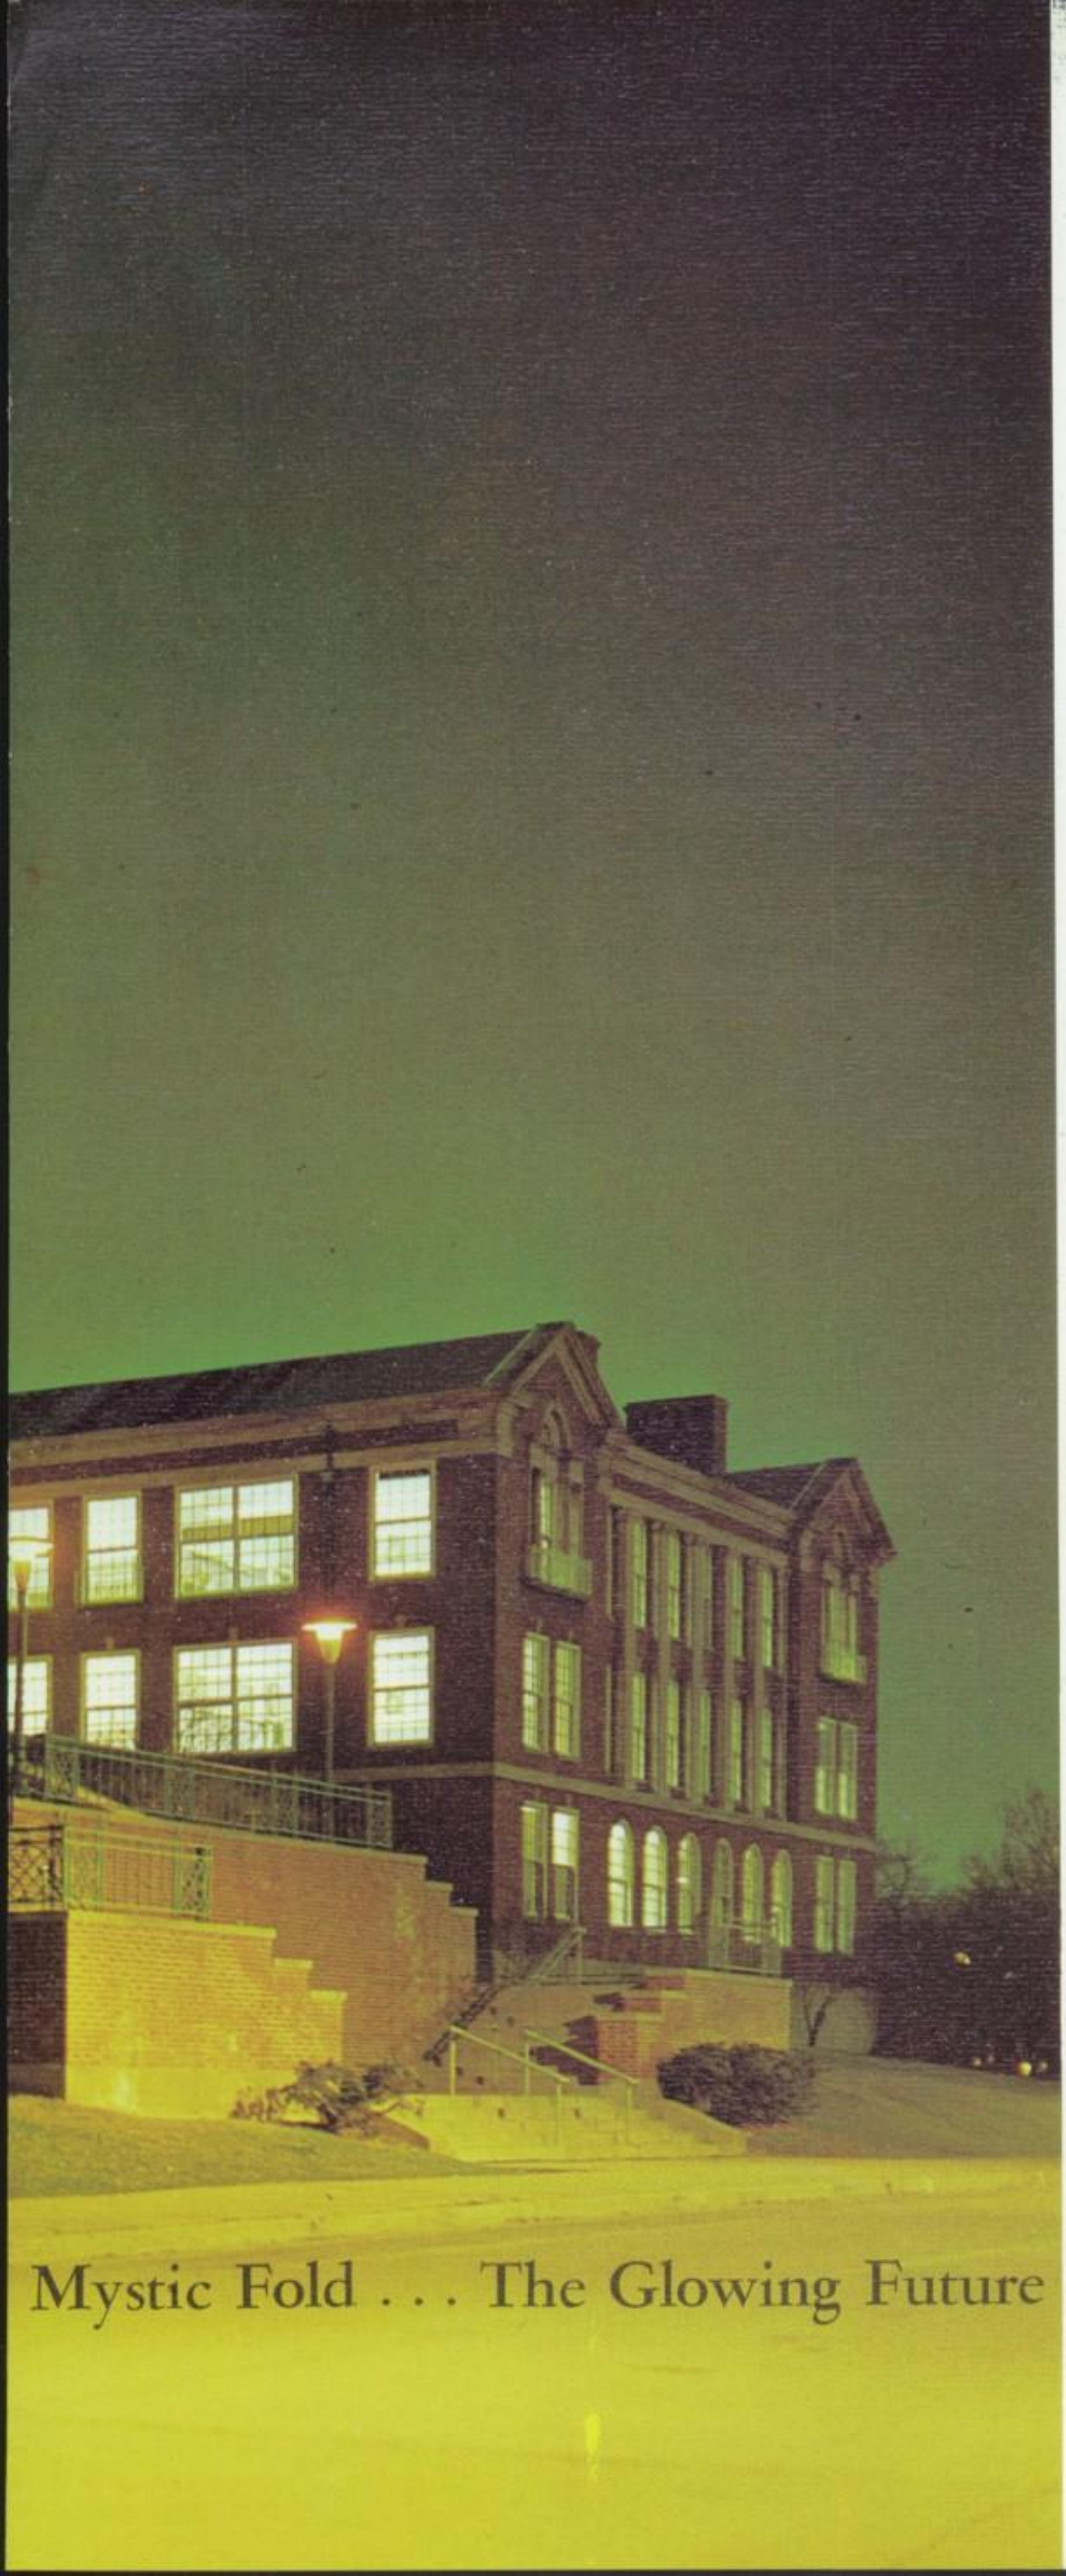
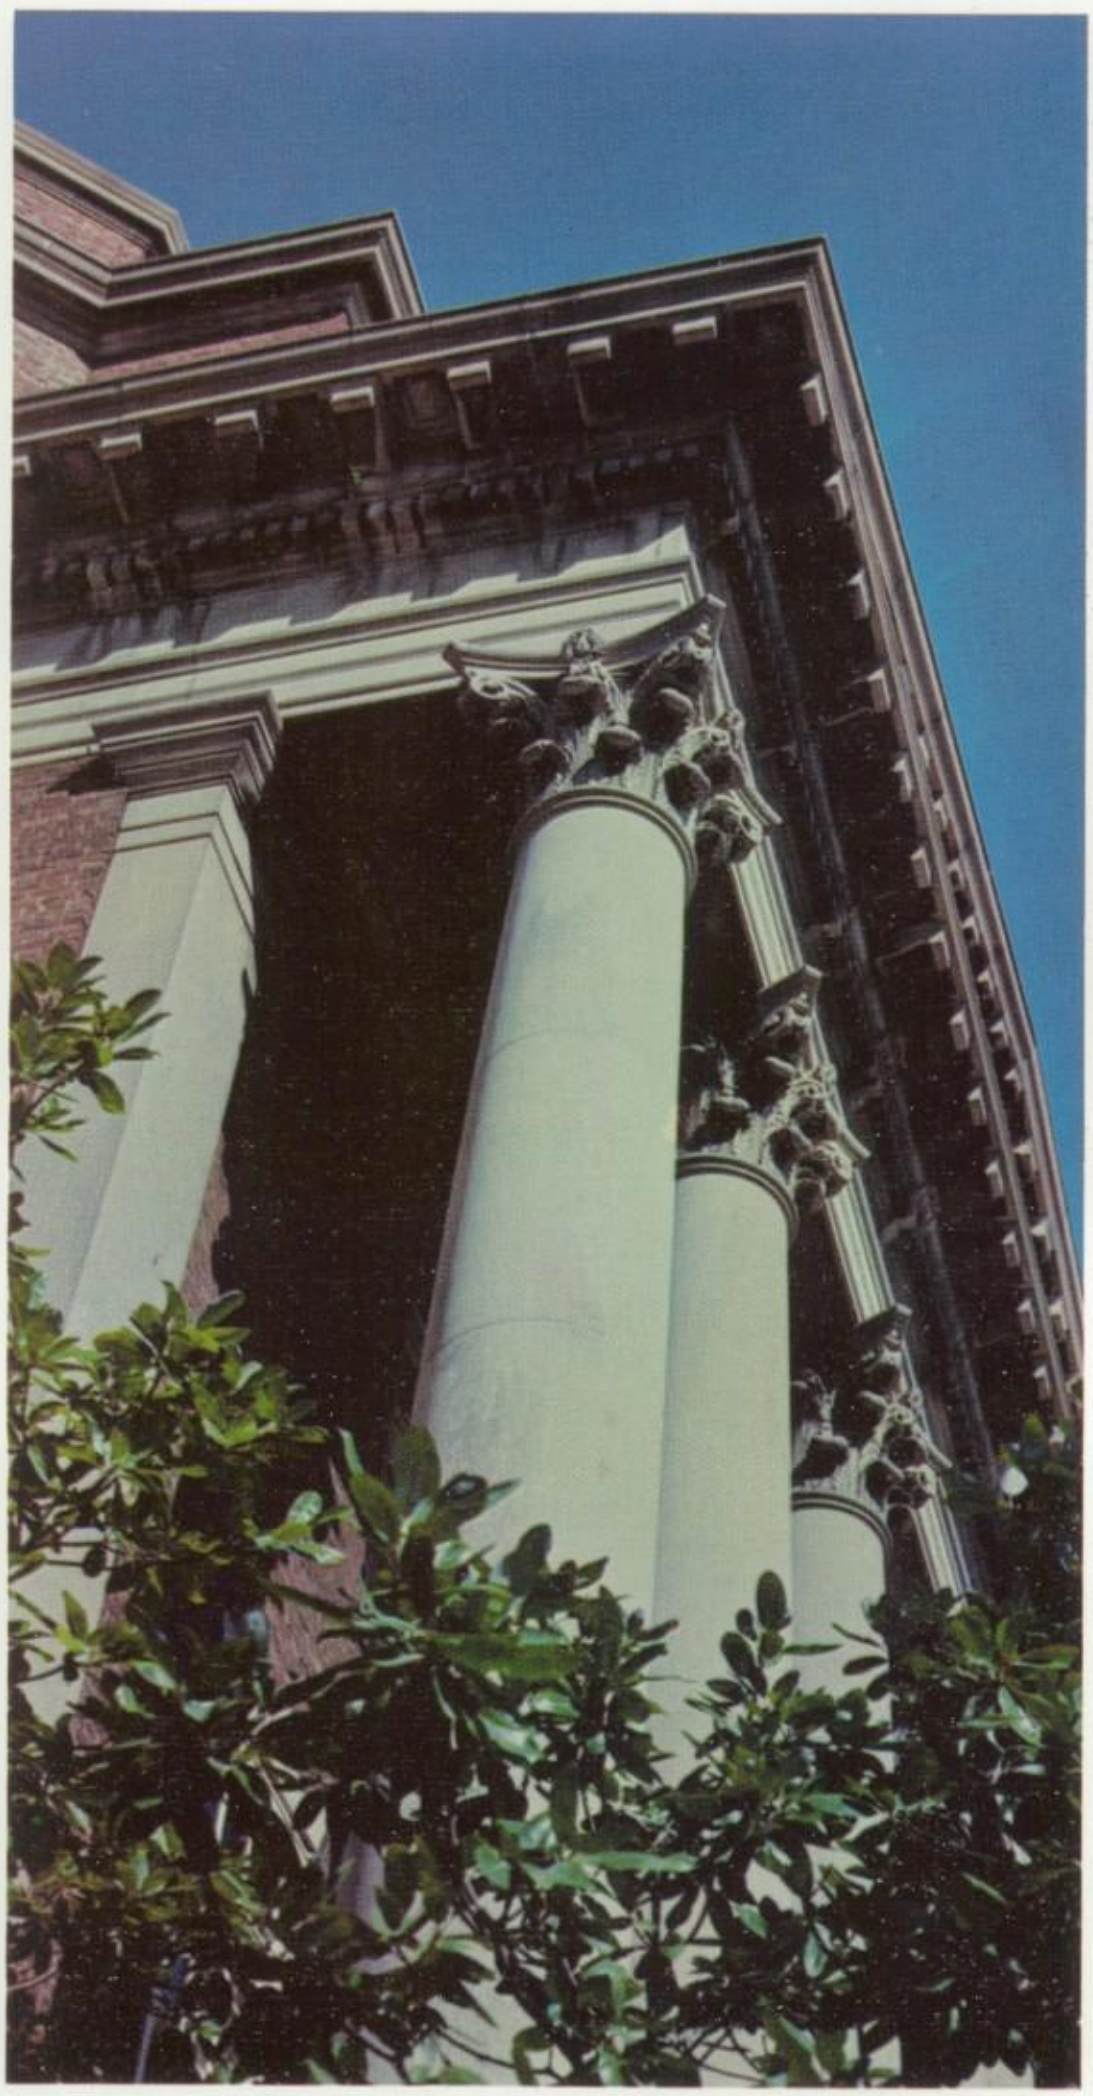
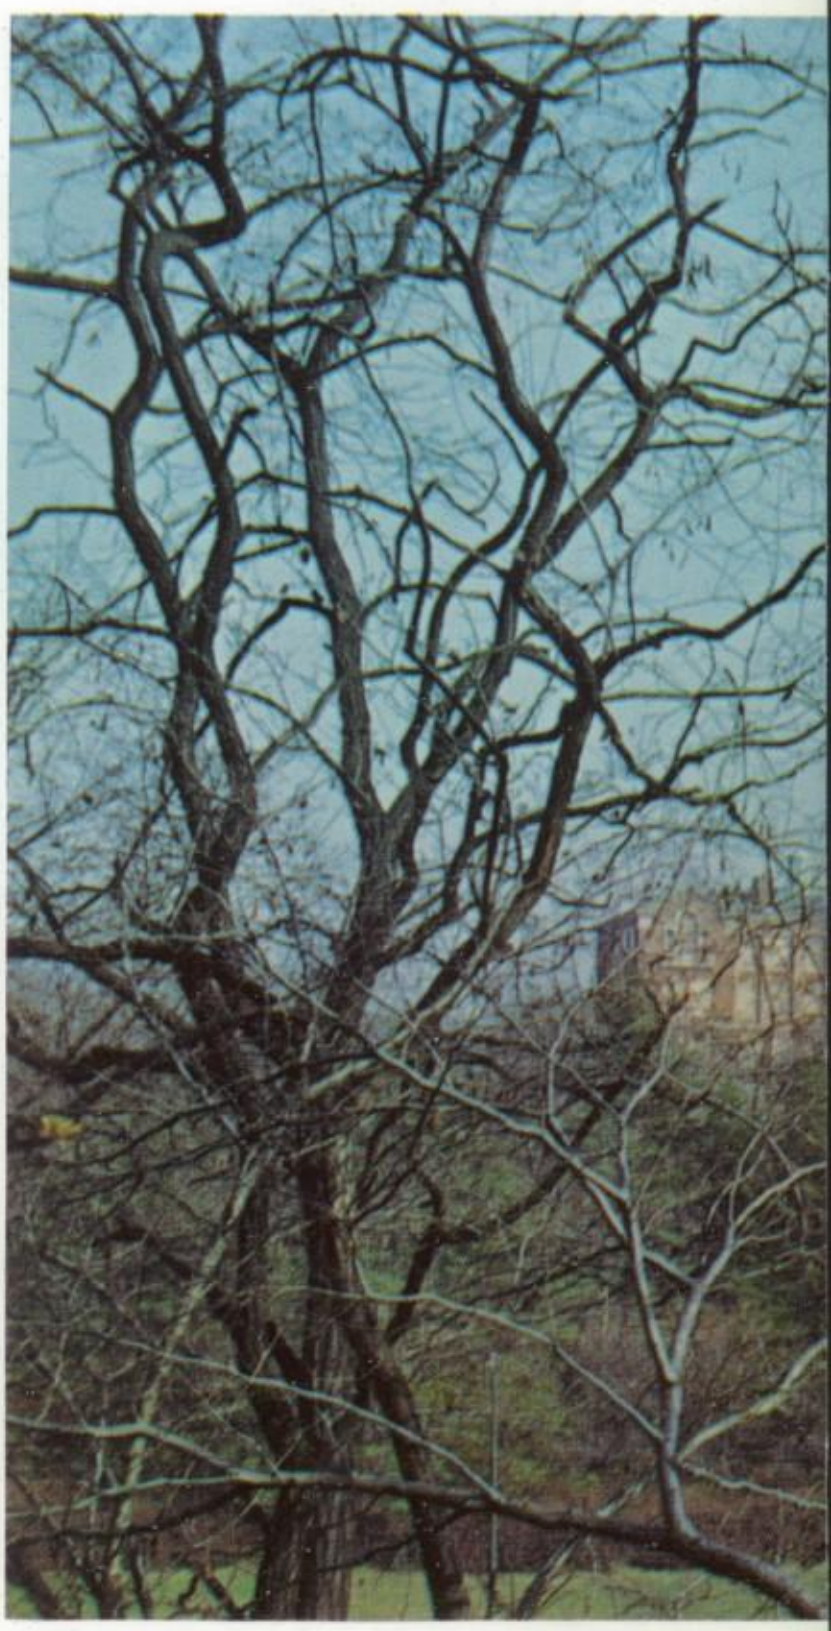
Behind The Curtain's



Mystic Fold . . . The Glowing Future Lies Unrolled.

Bret Harte





The Curtain's

Mystic Fold . . .

High on a hill mellowed red brick walls curtain Walnut Hills High School. The stately pillars and dome, the serenity of inviting courtyards, the dignity of classical architecture provide the background against which the curtain stands. The customs and traditions of past generations include a graciousness which permitted the addition of the annex in 1960 with its representation of contemporary experimentations. Combining experience stemming from the past with a vision projecting into the future, Walnut Hills High School molds its potential. The curtain beckons mystically, behind it lies opportunity.

We the Glowing Future

Behind the curtain lie the seeds of the future, the students of Walnut Hills High School. The nurturing, the cultivation, the protection afforded by the curtain permit the student the necessary guarantees for recognition of changing needs and the needs to change. Walnut Hills High School offers the student the classical training and the exposure to new experimentations. A student accepts of these so that he might make socially constructive contributions to the community and gain scholarly attainment in academic areas for the future. The student is a living representation of the curtain's ideals, traditions, and goals.

Faculty

Mr. McDevitt

Principals

Mr. McDevitt, Mr. Brokamp, and Mr. Spreen provide the leadership at Walnut Hills for both faculty and students. The goals and ideals exemplified by them stimulate the pupils to high standards of conduct and achievement. Accordingly, our graduates are better prepared for a self-disciplined life in the future.

Mr. Brokamp

Mr. Spreen

Counselors

The counselors assist the students in shaping their plans for later life. Mr. Webb and Miss Logan aid Junior High students in adjusting to their new academic lives at Walnut Hills thereby eliminating many of the difficulties they might encounter in Senior High. Miss Manoukian and Mr. Rouse guide the students in their choice of curriculum and advise them on the selection of a proper college for the continuance of their education.

English

Mr. Glesen

The study of English has three fundamental components: the basic concepts of grammar that facilitate any form of expression, exposure to myriad forms of literature, and the essential need to develop, organize, and discipline the creative spirit. Through the study of literature the student learns to examine objectively and gains perception into the world in which he lives. Creative writing provides for an outlet of ideas in a disciplined, expressive form, and an unequaled opportunity for personal development and self-evaluation.

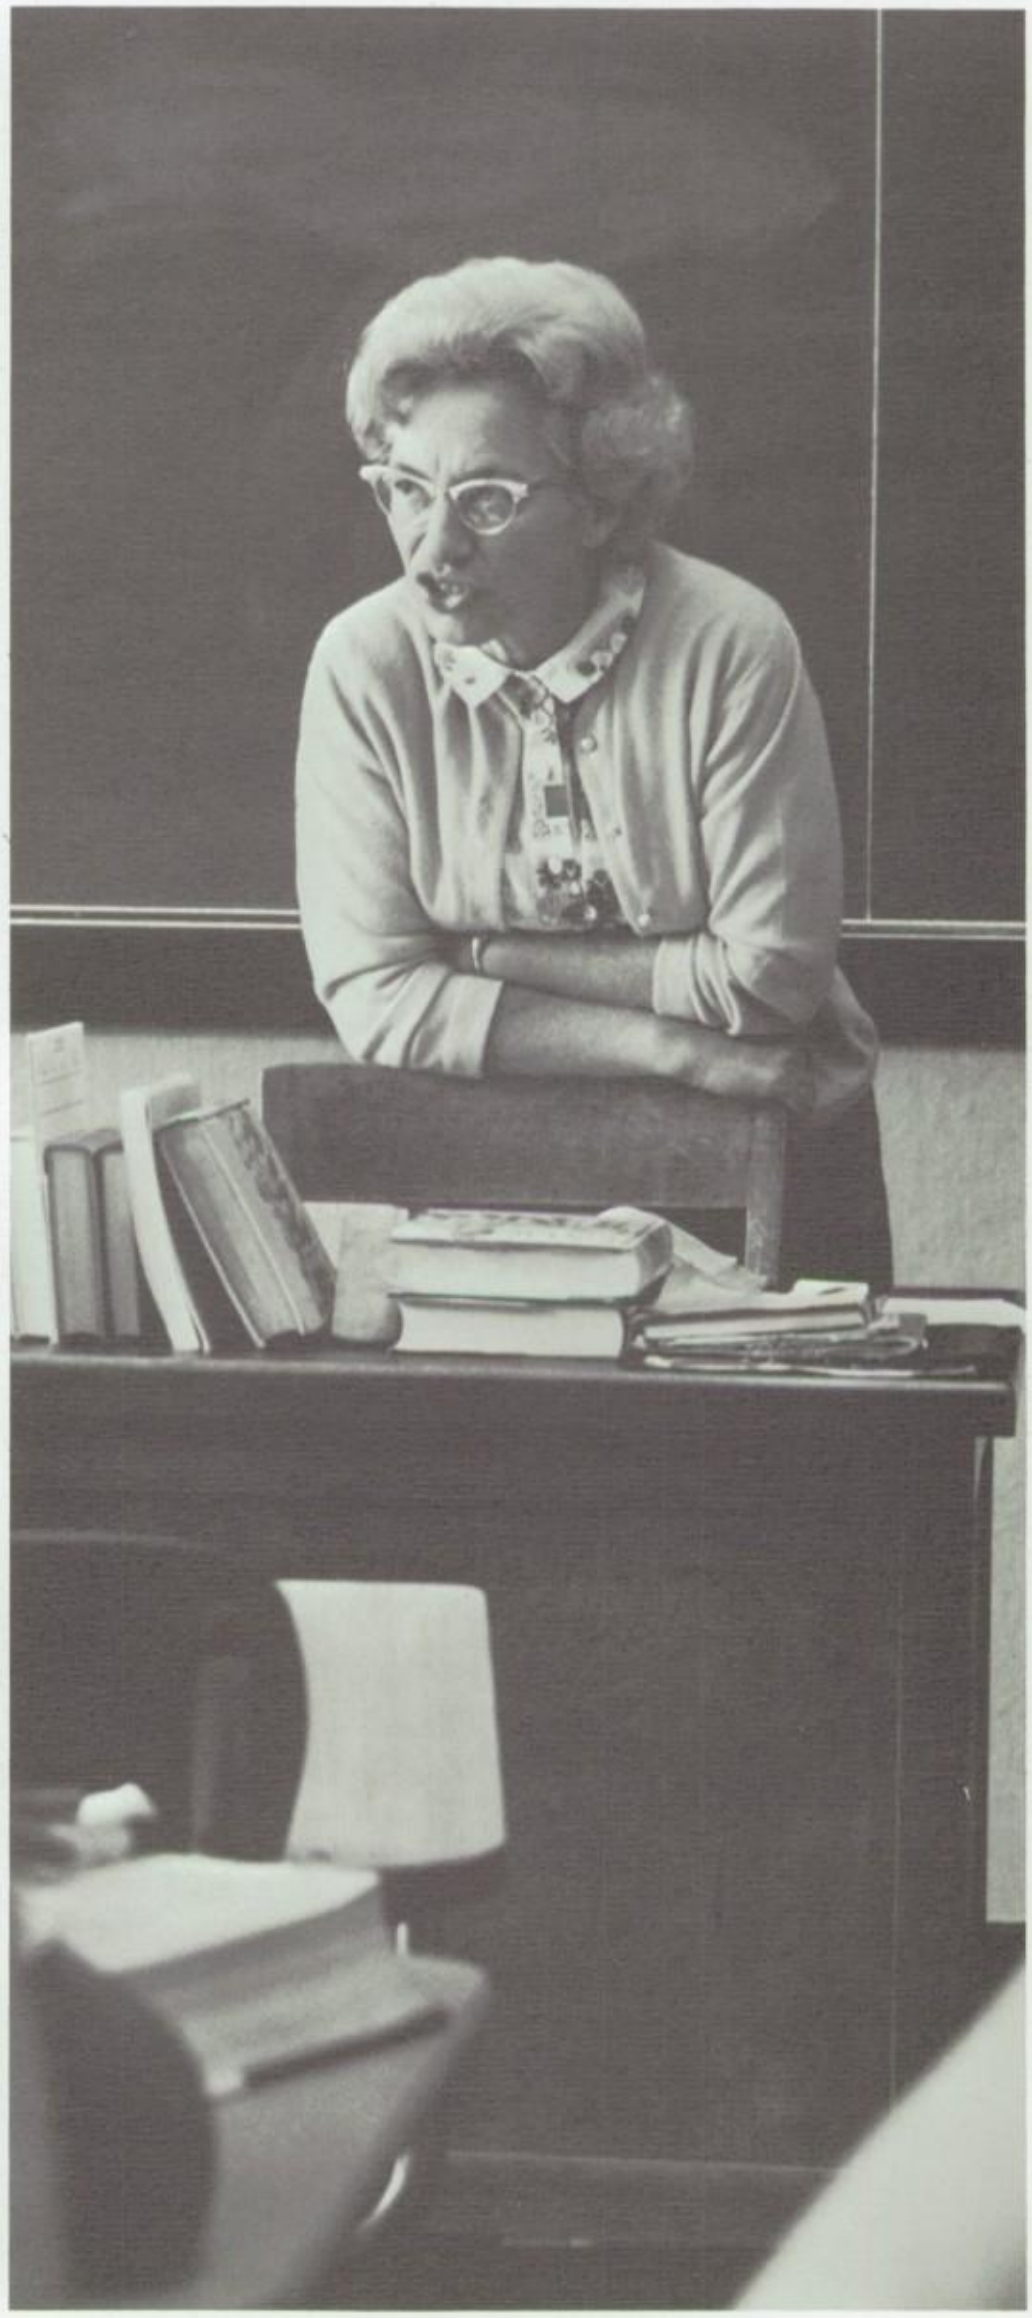
Latin

The Latin program represents one of the strongest ties Walnut Hills has with classical tradition. The student receives a rich background in ancient culture as well as a deeper understanding of literature. With a view to the present, the Latin language provides the basis for the structure of many modern Romance languages.



Miss Hope

Mr. Wittstein

Modern Languages

The study of modern language helps to eliminate the barriers of misunderstanding which separate the peoples of the world. Active language clubs enable the student not only to become fluent in his particular tongue, but also to broaden his knowledge of the culture entwined in the countries of his language group.

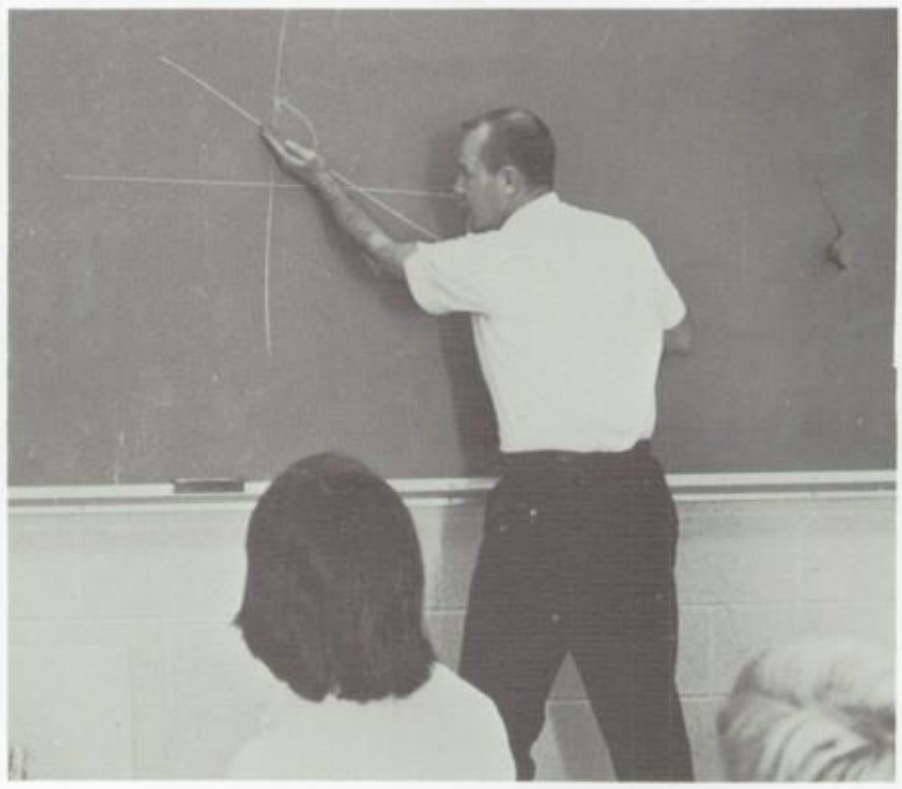
Mr. Bailey



Mathematics develops a logical approach to problems. The student learns to assimilate diverse ideas and formulate them into one concise answer; each conclusion paves the way for another. The student gains a deductive, systematic method of reasoning which he can apply to almost every phase of his intellectual growth.

Science

Mr. Woodward

Science is the invaluable key that opens the door to the ever-widening technical aspects of our world. Through science, the student gains a greater understanding of the natural forces in his everyday experiences. He learns how he can use this tool of scientific knowledge to his own advantage. The science program constantly expands to meet the demands of the world of tomorrow.

History

The history curriculum provides opportunities which enable the student to better appreciate his heritage. In preparation for responsible citizenship in the future, the student must be exposed to the basic concepts of his government. As history is an evolutionary process, the student, in learning how man has acted in the past, is better able to evaluate the present.

Barbara Dawson from New Zealand.

"The Brothers Four" appeared in the auditorium in May.

American Field Service

Barbara Dawson, our American Field Service student this year, is visiting Walnut Hills from Tarwansa, New Zealand. Although Barbie had to travel 10,000 miles to come here, she feels that her experience at Walnut Hills has been most rewarding.

Gloria Galanes and Ray Baxter, co-chairmen of the AFS Committee, carry a twofold responsibility with the AFS program. In addition to helping Barbie feel at home this year, they must raise funds for next year's student. For this purpose they have scheduled a concert by "The Brothers Four" in the Walnut Hills Auditorium.

Ray Baxter and Gloria Galanes, AFS co-chairmen, discuss plans with Mr. McDevitt.

Peanuts

The Juniors present their variety show, "Peanuts," in the fall of the year. Although the purpose of "Peanuts" is basically to raise money and unify the class, the experience means much more to members of the cast. "Peanuts" represents the spirit of fellowship and cooperation permeating the atmosphere during the first few weeks of school. It is excited anticipation, the joy of seeing weeks of hard work materialize into a successful show. For several weeks, "Peanuts" becomes a way of life for its cast. The actual performance culminates in a unity of minds and hearts, inclusive of the entire Junior class.

Ronna Freiberg and John Mitzel, co-directors of the "Peanuts of '64," labored tirelessly to make it a successful production. Memories of these weeks will always remain with the Class of '66; it will never cease feeling that the "Peanuts of '64" was the best ever.

Directors: Ronna Freiberg and John Mitzel.

Walnuts

J. Friedman, G. Mezarups

Walnuts is a unique school production. Almost all the responsibility of writing, directing, and performing the show is held by students. Here, any member of the student body has the chance to participate, to display his talents. One learns to work with others, to overcome frustrating setbacks, to take failure with dignity and success with pride.

This year's Walnuts was an exiting parody of an eventful political campaign. The two contenders were John Marzetti, an Italian mobster, and Schinkenbrot, a retired Indian fighter. With its nimble horses and ponies, its excellent specialties and its flavorful continuity, Walnuts was a show to be remembered.
